The Brattle Group

As international markets become increasingly integrated, the competitive landscape grows more complex.

The competitive balance between domestic and overseas suppliers is affected by the possibility of production subsidies, products dumped on overseas markets at “below normal” prices, patent infringement by foreign producers, and labor or environmental policies.

EXPERTISE IN A CHANGING WORLD

Rigorous economic and financial analysis is often needed to identify appropriate “like” products, to assess whether domestic firms have been harmed by allegedly unfair trading practices, and to measure the extent of any injury. The Brattle Group

provides extensive experience and state-of-the-art analytic capabilities to address these issues. Our economic analysis is designed to support and complement legal approaches.
